PEAKS

We looked up. Slowly and uncertainly we began our ascent to the peak, rising above the clouds of doubt and fear. Something within impelled us on. We looked ahead, seeking the pulse of life, hoping to become a part of its essence. Near the summit the veiling clouds slowly sifted, and we gazed into the blinding white light of our ideal. We stood at the peak, free, enveloped by the transcendent truth. Here we found clarified the pattern of a life's ideal. From this pinnacle we turn expectantly to the beckoning peaks of future endeavor. The Tam O'Shanter of '66 records this, our ascent to the peak.

It is indeed an honor to be asked to write a foreword to Bonnie Doon's eighth annual Tam O'Shanter. Yet while I accept the assignment with pleasure, I am regretfully aware that it is a case of, to use the words of the ancient Romans, "Ave atque Vale", - Hail and Farewell.

Hail, because it is my first opportunity to contribute to a Bonnie Doon yearbook, and farewell because in all probability it will be my last.

But first let me bring greetings to the editorial staff of the Tam O'Shanter. I wish you every success with your 1966 publication. If the student body gives it the support it deserves you need have no fear but that it will rank alongside of any of its seven predecessors.

And now for my "Vales", - not that I am contemplating any immediate or sudden departure from this revered seat of higher learning.

It has been my special privilege during the past three years to be closely associated with the class of 1966 and to have followed its fortunes through grades ten, eleven, and twelve. It numbers among its members my last science class and while this is no guarantee that it will contain any great leaven of future brilliant scientists, it does give me that warm and intimate sense of belonging that only a daily association in the classroom can give to a teacher. Good luck graduands! May you have success in your examinations and a golden future in the years to come.

Finally I would like to express my appreciation of having had an opportunity to share with Mr. Ward in the work of laying the foundations of this famous institution known as Bonnie Doon. For this school to have earned in its eight brief years of history the respect which it enjoys on all sides and to have won so many laurels both in the realm of sports and in scholastic attainment is a great tribute, first and foremost to its principal and then to its teachers and students.

Bonnie Doon, I salute you. Ave atque Vale.

EDITORIAL

"Always face the sunshine and the shadows will fall behind."

This year, I have met the greatest challenge and responsibility of my life thus far — the preservation of cherished time. Throughout the experience, I have been looking forward to the day when 'Tam O'Shanter - 1966' would appear in print. That day has finally arrived and I hope you are pleased with the results — that this book will not be a mere chronicle of events, but that it will be a glowing page in our diary of life.

The theme "Peaks" was chosen for this eighth edition of Tam O'Shanter because man's achievements may be symbolized as peaks in the range of life.

As the 1965 - 1966 school year fades at Bonnie Doon, several peaks have been reached. Newer and more notable heights have been reached scholastically, spiritually, and athletically. The grade ten student first realizes his potentialities as an adult and as a member of the community. The knowledge he has gained will be the basis of all future learning. The second year student can look back upon what he has accomplished in his first two years of high school and assess his abilities. At the same time he is faced with another, more challenging peak. The graduate, too, should feel that his years in high school were well spent. He should feel confident that he will be able to use the knowledge that he has gained at Bonnie Doon as a means of finding his niche in the world.

I hope the Tam O'Shanter staff, too, has reached a peak in '66 — a peak in the preservation of the past year at Bonnie Doon. The staff this year has been handicapped by financial difficulties and by the fact that the preparation of a yearbook was a new experience to each member. As a result, there were numerous difficulties and mistakes — but these were soon overcome, and the satisfaction received upon seeing the many hours of hard work materialize in print makes it worthwhile. I would sincerely like to thank Mr. McKee for his patience and understanding, for without his guidance this annual would have been deficient in many aspects. To every individual who has contributed to the preparation of this Tam O'Shanter, a very special thank-you.

Every student who is leaving Bonnie Doon this year, whether he is planning to continue his formal education on higher levels, or to go directly into the business world, should remember that learning doesn't cease after grade twelve. And, before any of us can be useful to our fellow man we must perfect our abilities. This idea is well-phrased in our school's motto, "Optimum Cuique" — The Best For Each.

To all the students of Bonnie Doon:

"Give the world the best you have and the best will come back to you."

AROUND B.D.

"There is nothing either good or bad but thinking makes it so!"

"Though this be madness, yet there is method in it!"

Did I leave the tap running when I left home?

And this is my forehand slam!

Hey, fellas, you know what I found on the other side?

The lady doth protest too much methinks.

The sky is falling!

I'm an eagle, I'm an eagle!

... One may smile, and smile, and be a villain

A peek in the Pub. during Christmas Holidays!

... and still we are jolly!

"Tiger, Tiger!"

STUDENTS' UNION

FIRST ROW: Marg Carmichael, Ute Peter, Trudy Browne, Secretary; Judy Donald Vice-President; Lorraine Ward.

SECOND ROW: John MacRae, Treasurer; Don Beeken, Bruce Evans, Mr. French, Advisor; Greg Stiles, Greg Harris, President.

I am sure that most of you would agree that this year has been one of Bonnie Doon's best: academically, athletically, socially and culturally. Each report in this Yearbook will show that Bonnie Doon has been the best high school in 1965-66.

I would like to thank those who have helped made this year a success: the Administration and Staff, the Executive, Board Members, Club members, room reps, the Stage Band, the dance committees, the Yearbook Staff, and of course everyone who supported the Christmas project, Book Drive and Heart Fund.

Bonnie Doon is a school to be proud of. Plans have been started for a massive school reunion at Bonnie Doon on July 1, 1976 for renewing high school friendships and reliving high school memories.

Serving and representing Bonnie Doon this past year as President of the Students' Union has been an honor, pleasure and enjoyable experience which I shall never forget.

I would like to extend my best wishes to everyone at Bonnie Doon, and thank you for making 1965-66 so memorable.

In hopes that the stench would soon disappear.

And soccer was flavoured with Gorgichuk's mime.

FIRST PRIZE SHORT STORY

To Restraining The World

Reba was continually surprised that Patrick's petty inconveniences should cause her so much pain. Sitting as he was, on the floor, with his head thrown back, he would eventually have to see the rugged chain of mountains that ran across the ugly grey ceiling. She saw in the contractions of the muscles of his forehead that he was trying to listen to her words; but the concierge had carried up some beer, so the sounds would merely brush his consciousness and flee.

"Listen to me, Patrick," she implored. "They'll deport you . . . oh, hell!"

She struck the frail bedpost with her fists and then fell on the covers, her head and arms dangling over the edge.

Moving for the first time, the man opened his eyes.

"Reba, are you angry?" He made a move as if to get up from the floor, but stayed instead to wait for her reply.

"Patrick . . .". She made a movement with her hands, a reaching out for something; but the air held no answer, and she had to content herself with clutching the loose cloth of the bedspread. "Gerald said that gendarmes would have you deported if they caught you again in the Champs Elysees."

"There are other areas of the city—"

"Why don't you get a job instead of living in this hovel and owing two months back rent? Do you enjoy balancing on your tightrope?"

Idiot, she screamed to herself. You sound like an ignored alarm clock!

"Sweet princess, I am a singer. I can do nothing else, nothing less. Certainly not here, and not now."

Reba rolled off the bed and moved to stand by the window.

"Do you remember the first time we met?"

She had seen him standing near St.-Germain-des-Pres with all that he possessed of America — a dirty khaki knapsack, a copy of A CONEY ISLAND OF THE MIND, and the last thing he'd bought in New York, a Judy Collins album.

Feeling a sudden, desperate need of words to fill the black void, she rushed at him with memories.

"Regine had told me that there was another American streetsinger in the Fifth Arrondissement, but when I saw you I was disgusted."

"Careful that you don't swell my ego." He smiled gently, both to punish and forgive her.

"Bearded expatriate Americans bore me — they're so puerile — as if a few ill-kept hairs on one's face are any kind of freedom. They are — you admitted it yourself — simply an identification with a newer, stronger conformity."

Reba stopped, amazed that his condescendingly tolerant expression didn't infuriate her as it would have a month ago. She ignored him.

"Then you explained to me that you had stopped shaving the day you left for Europe and wouldn't shave again until you were ready to return home. I thought that was romantic, I saw in you all kinds of wisdom that I'd never have."

"It was fine that you'd come here to find yourself, but Patrick, I expected you to have the sense to realize that the answer must be in one of the CAVES EXISTENTIALISTES. If it were an external crisis you could do that, but chère, the soul is where you should be searching. Or are you afraid?"

She was hanging onto the window sill, and her eyes were closed, as if the effort of forcing the words out had exhausted her. She cried again, facing him.

"ARE YOU AFRAID? You know, don't you, that you are never going to find what you are looking for if you keep running away? There are no more problems solved on the RUE DE LA MONTAGE STE. GENEVIEVE than there are on Bleeker Street."

"Or is it that you want no answer? Perhaps life is easier when you can sing in the streets all day and drink wine all night and say, 'I am an artist.' If you KNEW that your ideas and your values were good, there would be no need for you to have left New York for Paris. You could have lived on PARK AVENUE and have been creative if you had within you the spirit that you keep insisting you do."

She watched as Patrick, still in his solitary corner, bent to light a cigarette. His eyebrows met worriedly to confer over his nose, and grasping his blue-jeaned legs, he stared at Reba.

On the floor beside him was his guitar, over his head an exquisitely hung Brague pring; and where his feet would have been had he stretched them, was a black stool on which was piled old magazines, a battered copy of HIROSHIMA, MON AMOUR, and a tube of toothpaste.

Moving again, Reba looked out the window and saw a young couple wheeling a baby carriage.

"I'm not a Liberated Woman," she said, in the tone of one unwillingly betraying his country. "I want to get married and have babies. I don't dare say the word love, because that puts us both under such terrible obligations, but won't you let me see myself as anything but a threat to your freedom and peace of mind?"

With her eyes closed once more against the bare light bulb, Reba remembered a story he had told her of a garden of his youth, with straight, formal paths, and stiff flowers. One day, in an unheard of fit of rebellion, and partly in an attempt to fight the comfortable apathy, he had stepped off the path, twisted a waxy yellow bud from its perch and hurled it into his mother's pond. He had been discovered and punished; but he knew, still, that he had disturbed the order and was the victor.

Unexpectedly, Patrick raised his head until the thorns of his beard no longer pierced his chest. Then he reached for his guitar and began to sing, mournfully.

O fare thee well
My darlin' true.
I'm leavin' the first hour
Of the morn.
It's not the leavin'
That's grievin' me,
But my true love
Who's bound to stay behind.

The tune was from his Judy Collins album, and one, Reba knew, that he never sang in the streets. The songs on the record were for afternoons alone with her or for the long insomniac hours of the Paris night.

Seeing the record jacket at the heart of the storm, Reba reached for it, and with a strangely painful madness, ground it beneath her black heel. When the pieces lay like a mother's heart at the going of her child, she turned; feeling the dented doorknob beneath her hand, she ran.

Reba thought it strange that at this moment of her first tiny death, she should remember a childhood game. Sitting beside a Lilliputian doll's house, one imagined and described a forest that was supposed to be Life. The golden forest of memory was gone, and in its place a malevolently black and bitter one, with trees gnarled and useless and a sterile ground that offered the weary traveller no rest.

Reba walked in her forest; and in passing, severed a branch. Her heart faltered, became weak-kneed. Buried deep within the womb of the lifeless black limb was a joyful exuberant green, and on the ground a welcome mat of soft moss. She sank to her knees in front of the tree and wept.

The next morning, her anger spent, Reba returned to the flat; but in it there was nothing of Patrick but three stiff hairs clinging to a rusty razor.

SECOND PRIZE SHORT STORY

The Web

Stacy pushed open the heavy door of the library, smiled at the librarian, and noted happily that the only vacant seat was at Tom's table. He was reading a book, which provided her with a conversation starter.

"Hi," she said softly, slipping into the seat beside him. "Is the book good?"

"Fascinating," he replied. "Did you know that there are twenty-five hundred species of spiders in North America and barely one-fifth of them build webs?" Stacy shivered. Why must it always be spiders? "It says here that each species has its own type of web. For instance, here's a picture of the web of Linyphia, and this one's built by Hyp-tiotes."

"Why, how interesting," Stacy exclaimed, hoping she sounded convincing. She shuddered inwardly at the hairy apparition which glared out at her from the page. It was all she could do not to turn away in revulsion. "But what gets me is the trap-door spiders. You know. They build tunnels with trap doors. Ari-something, isn't it?" Then, at his look of surprise, "You're not the only one who reads books, you know. I've been looking at some myself, lately."

"Are you interested in spiders?"

"Oh, yes." She crossed her fingers behind her back. "I think they're the most intriguing little creatures!"

"Then will you come for a walk in the woods with me tomorrow? I know a place where there are some very intricate specimens of webs."

"I'd love to. I've always wanted to see a dew-covered web. They show up so much better."

"Good. I'll pick you up at five. Okay?" He rose to leave.

"Well . . . Okay. See you then!" Stacy could not restrain a little chuckle of happiness at her success. She liked Tom very much and had been trying for weeks to get a date with him. But spiders. She shivered in apprehension. Would she be able to control her fear for his sake? "Well, I can sure try!" she said aloud and headed for class.

The trees, in their late-autumn overcoats, seemed even more golden in the early morning sunlight. Stacy and Tom shuffled happily through the red-gold carpet, thinking secret thoughts. "Isn't it a pity the woods can't always look this lovely?" Stacy said romantically.

"Yes," agreed Tom. "I think there's a kind of spider that does its best work at this time of year."

"Oh, look, Tom. Those two little chipmunks look just like they're kissing!" she squealed delightedly. The day could be perfect if it weren't for her growing apprehension. And Tom wasn't helping much.

It had started off all right, with an informative lecture on what they might find, which had lasted the entire five-mile trip from town. But the lecture had only tended to heighten Stacy's dread as she tried desperately to steel her nerves for the ordeal to come.

They rounded a bend in the path and almost collided with an enormous web. Stacy jumped back quickly, gasping in surprise. "Well, take it down, then," said Tom.

"I-I couldn't!" yelped Stacy. Then, seeing his puzzled look, she explained, "It looks so beautiful. Like a thousand rainbows captured in diamond cages."

"Girls!" said Tom, in mock exasperation. "Oh well, come on." He grinned and took her hand as they carefully avoided the web.

They walked on in silence for a few moments, Stacy enjoying the beauty of the morning, Tom preoccupied with spiders as usual. Then, suddenly, Stacy felt the familiar cold horror creeping slowly up inside her, chilling her blood. She turned slowly to the left side of the path and came face to face with a large spider, patiently lowering itself on a silken thread. She backed up in revulsion, but Tom exclaimed excitedly.

"It's Tegenaria atrica! I've only ever seen her picture, but isn't she graceful?"

Stacy held her breath, desperately fighting back her terror as Tom took the horrid thing into cupped hands and joyfully watched it scurry around, unable to escape. "Let's call her Teggy," she managed at last, but it came out squeaky instead of sounding care-free the way she had intended.

Tom regarded her strangely for a moment, then with a sudden smile, said, "Here, you hold her for a second. Cup your hands; no, like this, so she can't get out. That's right. Here you go, Teggy."

Helplessly following Tom's instructions, Stacy accepted the spider. It felt cold on her sweating palms and she started to shiver violently. She closed her eyes in despair and wondered vaguely how long it would be before the long, silent drive, the polite good-byes, and the end of a wonderful relationship that had hardly begun. Her misery became deeper as she thought of never seeing Tom again; and all because she was afraid of the things he loved. Why did it have to be spiders?

Then, miraculously, she felt a strange calmness engulfing her. Why hadn't she realized it before? Nothing mattered in the world except Tom. She could stand anything for him, regardless of the consequences. It was the full realization of this fact that completely dispelled all traces of her fear.

She opened her eyes slowly, and noticed she was crying. Tom still wore the same little smile of quiet understanding. She gazed through her tears at Teggy, sitting peacefully in the palm of her hand.

"Why, she's beautiful!" she exclaimed, as if seeing the spider for the first time. She picked it up gently between her finger and thumb and placed it carefully on a leaf, where it immediately went back to work.

She turned, then, to smile at Tom, and found his smile had broadened into a grin of pride. As they walked slowly back toward the car, he said softly, "Stacy, there's a dance at the hall tonight. No spiders, I promise."

"I'd love to." Stacy sighed contentedly

FIRST PRIZE NON-FICTION

VISIT from an ANGEL

Yes, I suppose we could manage another. When will it be coming?"

"Not another wet, squalling bundle of work!" I desperately thought, as I overheard a brief snatch from the telephone. But a moment later, my aunt bounced into the nursery to confirm my fears.

"That will be nice," I lied. "Boy or girl, and what are its problems?"

"It's a girl, premature, two months old, and only weighs six pounds four ounces. Her name is Doreen Turner, and she will need Extra special care."

Although I was only fifteen, I had come a thousand miles from home to help my aunt for the summer. She kept a nursery for six, and often seven children. But the different part about it was that these children could not walk, talk, or play. All day long they lay, unresponsive, in their cribs; they had little or no mental ability. When first introduced to these babies I had been shocked. My aunt, commenting about one little boy, said, "He doesn't even know how to cry." Another child did not know how to swallow, so he had to be fed by means of a tube which ran through his nostril and down to his stomach.

For the first week, I was fascinated by the many things my aunt taught me. Tube feeding was one of my proud accomplishments. But as the second week went by, the novelty of my job wore off. Each day was a replica of the one before it. My daily schedule required constant care for the babies: feeding them, changing them, bathing them. After a while, the day seemed like a scratchy record which was being played over and over again until it nearly drove me wild with boredom. Nothing interesting punctuated the monotony, and I began to hate every seemingly endless minute. Although my aunt was always kind and cheery, I resented her as the cause of my slavery. I even began to detest the babies for being the object of the work. Each diaper was repulsive to me, and my nerves jangled together each time a baby started to cry. And now another of those little brats was coming to torture me more. This new baby, I was sure, would bring me to the end of the thin thread of my patience. I gloomily awaited its arrival.

The following afternoon when the babies were having their naps, I was absorbed in an exciting T.V. program. The doorbell chimed loudly, twice, jerking me back into reality.

"Get the door, please, dear," My aunt called from her room. "It's probably the new baby already. I'll be there in a moment."

Reluctantly I pulled myself to my feet, and shuffled to the door, misgivings flooding my mind. If this kid is a loud crier, I thought brutally, I'll literally kick her out.

I opened the door. The woman who was tenderly holding a bundle of blankets, surveyed me doubtfully. "You aren't Mrs. Bennett, are you?"

"No," I answered abruptly. "I'm her niece. She'll be here shortly though." I made an effort to be courteous. "Won't you step in?" The lady obliged, and for a minute we both just stood there in awkward silence while I mentally kicked myself for my useless tongue. The silence became unbearable, so finally in desperation, as an attempt to act politely, I stammered, "C-could I see the baby?" She lowered her burden a bit and removed the cover from the child's face. A lump rose in my throat and I gave a surprised gasp. A sweet little face with warm brown eyes peered up at me in complete contentment and peace. From the moment of that introduction we became fast friends, with me as her devoted slave.

Doreen WAS a special baby — in two ways really. For one, she was the sweetest ever. Only her name did not suit her personality; for even at her age, she had a character. But her name presented no barrier, for I merely changed it to "the Princess". She had one amusing habit, and that was pulling funny faces. I will admit that sometimes she made herself look quite comical.

Almost every day I bundled her up and took her for a walk around the house. I had hoped that it might put some color into her cheeks, but it never did. One day I was allowed to take her on a real outing. I packed up all her necessary belongings, and took her for a car trip across the city. She proved to be an excellent passenger. Perhaps why I especially liked Doreen were the facts that she never cried, and that she depended so much on me.

Another reason that made her so special was that she required extra care. Our main aim was to bring her weight up to normal. As it was, she looked like a pale china doll which would break if you picked it up. I had to tube feed her every three or four hours in the day, and a couple of times during the night. At each feeding she could not take much more than an ounce. After she was fed, she had to be watched very closely, in case she should cough it back and choke. Many times I had gone back to check her to find her lips and fingernails turning slightly blue. I would quickly use a suction pump to clear her throat. Only once or twice did I panic and call my aunt for help, but Doreen always survived these ordeals.

Every day we anxiously laid her on the scales and prayed that the marker would show her a little heavier, but for a long time she hardly gained anything. Then, about one month from the time Doreen came, she began to gain steadily. We were greatly encouraged by this. My aunt and I felt that we had won a hard fought battle, and rejoiced in our success. We increased the amount of her medicine and tried to give her a bit more at each meal. But suddenly her progress halted, turned around and began to decline at a rapid pace. Nothing we did could stop it, so finally we sent her to the hospital. I missed her terribly every time I looked at the empty crib. The next morning just after I'd had my breakfast, the phone rang furiously. I answered it.

"Hello?"

"Is this the Bennett residence?" asked a professional voice.

"Yes, it is," I answered.

"This is the Pediatric Hospital calling. Doreen Turner died this morning at 7:15."

FIRST PRIZE POEM

To Laura

Let me trace these futile wavering whorls
Before the thieving scouring wind returns
From robbing naked sands, to sweep me to His orchestra. Forgotten centuries
Of camels' hooves play minor keys on dunes
And I, poor spectre wheel, must be
Their dying, shivering flutes, be chased through wandering
Melodies, and curse the coaxing breath
That scuffs my sandy message to my friends.

My friend! Half-buried echo-word I lost
Somewhere . . . but I remember now the night . . .
I bartered for a wisdom-word: mirage.
If you would hear a song of broken spokes,
Then I should sing it, though the creaking notes
Might wander from the shifting road. If you Could bear the weight of love, then I should send it, Though I've none to send. Come then, o my Struggling strength! Help me through this stubborn sand.

But once there was no need to send nor sing
For we were but an axle-length apart
And trundled smoothly down the stable road
Of my self-confidence; and hitched to us
A tenuous chain around the helpless world,
And only we could vanish war and want.
But even the blind can guess at light. I did,
And snapped the axle — should I have stopped us both?
The world has faith in you — wait, careless wind, not yet!

Death of a Child

The hawk soaring overhead dropped as a metal raindrop from heaven upon the grey young dove at noon —
with talons sprung
he struck and clutched
the soft back — a wide sweep and up his strong wings pulled guided — upwards to heaven
he took the little

FROSH WEEK

Bonnie Doon Frosh suffered the usual hazing of the seniors from September 15-17. In spite of the general discontent among the frosh, a good time was had by all. An exciting fun-filled week was climaxed by the Frosh Dance Saturday night, when Mary and The Sensations played to a full house of Doonites.

The Football Season began.

OCTOBER

MAD HATTER'S DAY

Friday, October 8 saw a wild assortment of hats walk into Bonnie Doon. In the main gym at noon-hour, the best hats from each room were displayed and judged by student applause. Following that, Mary and The Sensations played for one of the best noon sock hops that Doonites have had so far. Excellent support on the part of the students made Mad Hatter's Day highly successful.

U.C.F. DRIVE

At noon on October 18, 1000 Doonites rocked and stomped to the swinging sound of Wes Dakus and the Rebels. The show, M.C.'d by CJCA's Frank Todd, was in promotion of the 1965 United Community Fund.

ALLEY RALLY

On October 30th, over 750 Doonites attended the 4th annual Alley Rally. Everyone put on their grubby clothes and swung to the sound of Willie and the Walkers. One newspaper-covered "Alley" was the scene of a highly successful dance.

The sweet smell of success!

WILLIE AND THE WALKERS

NOVEMBER

PARENTS' NIGHT

On Parents' Night, November 3rd., the Parents of Bonnie Doon students had the opportunity to meet their son or daughter's teachers. The evening was very successful.

Bonnie Doon's First Hootenanny

DECEMBER

SNOW DOWN

The Christmas Dance, Snow Down, was an informal ski sweater dance. A large number of students attended the dance which was complete with Willy and The Walkers and go-go girls. Refreshments were served in the cafeteria.

OXFAM

In December, students paid to enter the gym to eat lunch. The money collected was in aid of a program to supply famine-struck villages and towns in India with chickens which would be used for both eggs and meat. Students were provided with entertainment ranging from a charming fashion show featuring several male Doonites, to singing. It was an enjoyable noon hour spent for a good cause.

JANUARY

BOOK DRIVE

On January 11, seven hundred Doonites attended a noon sock hop with B. C. and the Primitives. The admission to the dance was a book for the War on Ignorance book drive or a silver contribution. Eighteen dollars and over six hundred books were collected. The number of books continued to rise as the week progressed.

REACH FOR THE TOP

The Reach For the Top team played three games. In the first game they defeated the Jasper Place Composite High School team and went over the Top (350 points) thereby winning a two volume edition of the Funk & Wagnall's International Dictionary for the school. In their other two efforts they put up a hard battle but lost both games to Strathcona Composite.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

The close of school year 1965-66 marks the end of a brisk effort by the yearbook staff to record the highlights of school life. Not all groups or individuals will feel they have been given sufficient attention. For that we would say sincerely, "We are sorry." We trust that the successes captured on these pages will compensate for the omissions. Next year we hope you will jog our memories and help us to prevent another oversight.

As yearbook adviser, I am personally indebted to the many students who have shouldered the burdens and carried a ponderous load to its destination. The Tam O'Shanter staff deserves a special thank you for every hour spent in collecting or writing material, preparing layouts, typing copy sheets, and proofreading. Teachers who have assisted in many departments and Publications Board, which sets our terms of reference, are invaluable to the production. Miss Molloy's interest in and awareness of circumstances have been deeply appreciated. Ken Clarke's special skills and equipment set photographic standards second to none.

Marion Scheepmaker's artistic touch has introduced a personality to Tam O'Shanter by accenting the MOTIF of "Peaks". And Diane Zelinski's over-all organizing, originating, and patient laboring has made the finished work a reality. Exacting standards demand more effort, but the reward for that effort lies in superior achievement. I hope each worker is satisfied in the knowledge that what he has done has been his best effort.

The Writer's Workshop, sponsored by Mrs. Moar, has given competent leadership to the Culture Contest. They not only established the machinery but also selected judges for each competition. Pressure of space limitations and early deadline precluded any opportunity for reprinting photography and three dimensional art samples. However, the standards of the entries were high and not to be deprecated by this serious omission.

A very special thank you is due the judges of the culture contest for their careful attention to each submission. Each one is eminently qualified in the following areas:

Photography: Dave Colville, Edmonton Journal

Art and Ceramics: Mrs. Jean Ward
Doug Barrie, Department of Extension

Literary: Mr. and Mrs. James Fritch
Mrs. Merna Leviston
Mrs. Inge Vermeulen

Goertz Studios did portraits of Grade XII students. National School Studios took all Grade X and XI pictures.

As we go to press, awards winners for 1966 are not available. Credit for duties well done will be given in the inevitable 1967 Tam O'Shanter.

PATHS

SENIOR GIRLS' BASKETBALL

FIRST ROW: Shirley Diwert, Shirley Gale, Barbara Gilbey
SECOND ROW: Miss Fisher, Sandi Smith, Jo-Ann Molsberry, Ute Peter, Karen Mason.
MISSING: Star Atkins, Lorraine Ward, Shirley Lopatinsky.

Bonnie Doon girls must have lost their touch in basketball this year. Although they worked hard under coach, Miss Fisher's able guidance and went all the way through their conference without a loss, they were defeated in the semi-finals by Ross Sheppard. The score was close until the final quarter when Ross Sheppard edged ahead of Bonnie Doon by a scant seven points. After failing to best the Lancerettes in volleyball, it seems the Ross Sheppard crew were out for blood on the basketball court.

However, the Lancerettes deserve much credit, not only for their fine dribbling, shooting, and guarding but also for their tremendous Bonnie Doon spirit. Nice work, girls!

JUNIOR GIRLS' BASKETBALL

FIRST ROW: Sherry Allen, Terry Lemmon, Chris Rapp, Gail Janzen, Joanne Mallett.
SECOND ROW: Mrs. Parker, Carolyn Bennett, Nadine Purpur, Barbara Stewart, Margaret McIntyre, Eleanor Marinoske, Marilyn Rose, Betty Smallwoods.

Following the footprints of the Senior girls, the Juniors were downed in their semi-final game. It was an exciting game with the two teams never separated by more than one or two points. However, the Scona girls put on a final burst of speed to nose out Bonnie Doon, 19-14.

The hard work and practice of the girls to please their coach, Mrs. Parker, almost paid off. Almost, but not quite. Congratulations on the good work this year, girls, and better luck next year!

TO THE COACHES

For the many hours, hints, and smiles they contributed to the teams, the three coaches – Mrs. Parker, Miss Fisher, and Miss McFarlane – deserve a special thanks. The team members all agree that it was a pleasure to work with you, win or lose. Thanks again for everything that you did for our teams – from all Bonnie Doonites.

SENIOR GIRLS' VOLLEYBALL

FIRST ROW: Jo-Ann Molsberry, Shirley Diwert, Ute Peter.
SECOND ROW: Miss McFarlane, Shirley Gale, Marg Thorne, Donna Edwards, Sandy De-bolt, Leah Corrins.
MISSING: Sharon Kitz, Starr Atkins, Lorraine Ward.

We have to give them a rousing cheer! The Senior Girls have done it again. For the third consecutive year, these champions have brought the City Trophy back to Bonnie Doon. As if conquering the city finals wasn't enough, the Girls also triumphed at the Provincials.

Miss McFarlane started out with a pretty scrappy team and built them into winners. They always had the spirit; Miss McFarlane developed their skills and techniques and made them into a team.

They went to the finals, having lost only one meet to Ross Sheppard. In one day, they won 11 out of 15 games, and left no doubt in anyone's mind who was best. These girls worked right up to the final whistle of the final game, fighting to remain the champs.

You put up a great battle, Seniors. Congratulations!

FIRST ROW: Carolyn David, Terri Lemmon, Sherry Allen, Gail Janzen, Janet Slemko.
SECOND ROW: Mrs. Parker, Gwen Kanda, Melissa Meckle, Nadine Purpur, Barbara Stewart, Eleanor Marinoski, Betty Smallwoods.

Although the Juniors played hard and skillfully throughout the season, they received a disappointing upset by Vic in the semi-finals. Their serves and volleys had never been matched until this game. Vic managed to scrounge a skimpy two-point margin only in sudden death overtime.

The girls developed a great deal of skill under Mrs. Parker's leadership and benefited from working under her, despite their final loss.

You fought a long, tough season and should be proud of your ability to work as a team. Good work, girls!

SENIOR BASKETBALL

Being the most powerful defensive team in the league, our Senior Lancers lost only two games in the regular season. Coach, Mr. Bright developed a well rounded team. Two of the year's most thrilling games were those in which they trounced Scona by 20 points and Calgary by 30 points.

JUNIOR BOYS' BASKETBALL

FIRST ROW: Howie Farrell, Greg Stewart, Mr. Gorgichuk, Barry Wright, Chris Norquist.
SECOND ROW: Garry Campbell, Don Radstaak, Ron Edmonds, Lance Roberts, George Spencer, Drew Cahoon.

The Junior Lancers led the league in total offence and were second in total defence this year. Although they had a good size, inexperience resulted in a close third place finish for our Juniors.

SENIOR BOYS' VOLLEYBALL

SECOND ROW: Greg Harris, Jack Paul, Don Kadatz, Jim Smith, Bruce Evans, Geoff Harris.

The senior volleyball team finished the regular season undefeated; indeed, unchallenged. They carried on the volleyball tradition at Bonnie Doon, for we have held the City Volleyball Championship since our school began.

In the finals, the Senior Lancers eliminated Ross Sheppard in an exciting best-out-of-five series. They won by a score of 17-15 in the fifth game.

Then the Lancers, representing Edmonton, advanced to the Provincial Championships. Defeating Vegreville convincingly in the finals, they became the Provincial Volleyball Champions.

Dennis Adams and Greg Harris were voted the most valuable players. Great credit is also due to Mr. Gorgichuk, the coach.

JUNIOR BOYS' VOLLEYBALL

FIRST ROW: Jim Short, Dave Turner, Barry Wright, Bryon Dickie, Brian Rikstad, SECOND ROW: Mr. Beach, Greg Stewart, Jim Donald, Dave Siskal, Ken MacFarlane, Pat Derbyshire

The Junior Lancers captured the City Championships again this year. They have now held the championship for three consecutive years. The Juniors trounced Ross Shepherd three-straight in the final, best-out-of-five series.

Coach, Mr. Beach, did an excellent job with the next year's Senior Champions!

WRESTLING TEAM

FIRST ROW: Alan McMahon, Carl Stark, Keith Johnstone, Neil MacGillivray.
SECOND ROW: Mr. Beach, Robert Ippolito, Jim Larson, Robert Quin,

1965 TRACK TEAM

FIRST ROW: Sandy Smith, Starr Atkins, Cherlynn Nelson, Laurie Ward, Janice Robinson, Merle Garrett, Anita Alexander, Shirley Gale.

SECOND ROW: Bodil Jensen, Linda Edey, Norma Garth, Cheryl Bisson, Joanne Hughes, Joyce Maxwell, Wendy Parslow, Crys Welwood, Barbara Gilbey.

THIRD ROW: Linda Stott, Bonnie Stewart, Marion Maxwell, Lorraine Ward, Ute Peter, Karon Mason, Donna McLennan.

FIRST ROW: Keith Johnstone, Bob d'Esterre, Alan Mabee, Stewart Marshall, Bill Keith, Allan Hooper, Robert Ippolito.

SECOND ROW: Wayne Hay, Blair Bennett, Don Nissen, John Stefureak, Dave Turner, Drew Cahoon, THIRD ROW: Mr. Bright, Edwin Keubler, Bruce Evans, Trev Whitehead, Don Kadatz, Jim Short, Ken Short, Ward Stuart, Roy Nicholson.

Last year our boy's track team was quite successful considering the close competition. Roy Nicholson, Don Nissen, Don Kadatz, Rudy Sedlak, and Trev Whitehead all earned the berths on the City Track Team which represented Edmonton at Stettler for the Provincial Championships.

Our girls also did very well. Wendy Parslow, Shirley Gale, Laurie Ward and Lorraine Ward went to the Provincial Championships in Stettler.

SENIOR FOOTBALL

FIRST ROW: Martin Townsend, Bob Yakiwchuk, Bill Hogan, Randy Innes, Howie Pearce, Greg Miles, Bruce Cruickshank, Bill Comrie.
SECOND ROW: Rick Woods, Larry Sylvester, Terry Shuttleworth, Allen Hasselgren, Bob Buckmaster, Dave Gibson, Bill Love, Alex Coumantarakis, Mitch Scott.
THIRD ROW: Mr. Gorgichuk, Bob McKay, Phil Robinson, Ward Stuart, Trev Whitehead, Rick Rayner, Jim Geldart, Adrian Besuyen, Dave Brown, Roy Nicholson, Mark McCullough, Mr. Bright.

Tough competition and bad breaks made all the senior games, hard fought battles. Despite the obstacles, our Senior Lancers were able to win two, tie one and lose three.

Perhaps, one of the most exciting games was the game against Queen Elizabeth in which Bonnie Doon was down 20-0 at the half-time mark. The team staged a remarkable come-back as they held the powerful Queen Elizabeth team scoreless in the second half and ran up 20 points for Bonnie Doon.

This "comeback" against Queen Elizabeth was just one example of the team spirit and drive of the team. Mr. Bright, the coach, and all members of the team deserve a great deal of credit.

The 1965 football season was a great success for the Junior Lancers. Our mighty juniors lost only two games in the entire season.

The "most valuable player" was Ken Short while Brian Towne was voted the "most valuable lineman" and the "player who did most for the team but received the least recognition." The Offensive Captain was Dave Turner and the Defensive Captain was Murray Douglas.

Mr. Beach, the coach, said that the most exciting game of the season was the final game against Queen Elizabeth. The teams were tied 15-15 with 30 seconds of play left when Bonnie Doon kick-off was touched before it went over the dead ball line for a single point. Final score: 16-15 for Bonnie Doon!

Gwen Farrage
Co-Captain

The Pep Squad showed their worth by winning the cheerleading competition at the Saskatoon Invitational Basketball Tournament held in December. The distinctive new outfits are consistent with Bonnie Doon's name, they being a predominantly yellow and green tartan of a Scottish clan. In keeping with the "new look" they are using several new cheers.
This year the Pep Squad was very successful in promoting school spirit and cheering our Lancers on to victory.

GRAD CLASS EXECUTIVE

SEATED: Geoff Harris, President; Nancie Byers, Secretary.
STANDING: Larry Willis, Vice-President; Pat Lundquist, Treasurer.

Graduation marks both an end and a beginning. For many of us it signifies the end of formal education, yet it is also the beginning of a new education. Whether we go to technical school, university, or into the world of business, graduation from high school is an important milestone in the road of life.

We of the grad class executive hope that Graduation 1966 has also been a memorable milestone for you. Our thanks to the staff advisors who were so helpful in making our graduation a fitting finale to our school years.

"Optimum cuique - the best to each," Bonnie Doon has surely offered each of us the best opportunities to learn and mature. Though our graduation is a memory-filled ending, let us make it an equally memorable beginning . . .

Geoff Harris.

VALEDICTORY

Tonight we graduate! We climb one rung higher on the ladder of life. Having reached this level, we sit back, heave a sigh of mixed relief and satisfaction, and give ourselves a well-earned 'pat on the back' for our accomplishment. But if we think for a moment, we realize that we could not have attained this height alone. Our thanks should flow in many directions.

To our school . . . We entered as starry-eyed Frosh. The school, a mere building, held a mass of a thousand strangers. It was exciting—the unknown, waiting to be explored! During the past three years, WE have BECOME the school. The friends we've made, the frequent victories, the rare defeats; we've learned to accept them graciously. The hard work, the inner satisfaction of a task well done, the foolish but enjoyable pranks, the great times we've had together; these are the high school memories we will cherish all our lives. We leave Bonnie Doon with a knowledge not only of books but also of people.

To our teachers . . . You have taught us well. By revealing knowledge to us you have also revealed yourselves, not merely as teachers, but as people. We have learned our courses, but we have learned other equally important lessons; the power and practical application of diplomacy, the power to choose and discriminate. Your toleration of us, sometimes, is a lesson in itself.

To our parents . . . You have played the most immediate and vital role in shaping our lives. With your understanding and often subtle, sometimes forceful guidance, you have helped us realize our goal.

To our fellow students . . . The friendships we have made, the fun we've had together at work and at play, we will never forget.

Tonight we say thank you, but we hope that the future will show you a more concrete thank you than we could ever express.

A valedictory is a farewell, a leave taking, a formal goodbye to our school. Must we say goodbye to all this? It's true we will no longer walk the halls, or see the familiar faces in their familiar surroundings. But, we have in our possession those precious intangibles, which once attained, can never be taken away; knowledge, skills, friendships, tools for all future trades. In this way, we are not taking leave of Bonnie Doon, we are taking Bonnie Doon with us.

The future is a challenge, no matter which direction we choose, but we have in our possession those tools we have learned to use during the past three years and we are able to meet that challenge head on.

"The rung of a ladder was never meant to rest upon but only to hold a man's foot long enough to enable him to put the other one somewhat higher."

Good luck to each of you and keep climbing!

CLASS HISTORY

"History" carried a self-inflicted connotation of dry, dusty dullness. Our history, however, has never been dull as shaped at Bonnie Doon. We've been too busy.

Remember reaching Bonnie Doon? A shiny-eyed bunch of kids, we were awed by the vastness of our new environment, and a little anxious about that looming giant — senior matriculation. We overcame early fear of marauding seniors only to learn of something worse — something called Departmentals!

At Bonnie Doon there is never nothing to do. If one plays chess or football, debates controversial topics or whether to buy chocolate or strawberry sundae, there's a place at Bonnie Doon for him. If one can paint, write, sing, listen, or cheer, our school offers him a club where it's an official Doonite activity.

Houseleagues compete year-round. Culture enthusiasts may dramatize for the Drama Club, produce posters and "chef-d'oeuvres" for the Art Club, or write with and encourage others in the new Writing Workshop. For music lovers of every taste — the smoothness of Bonnie Doon's Stage Band, the fellowship of a hootenanny with our Folk Singers, the variety of the Music-Listening Club. Our Booster Club boosted successfully this year, especially in providing work for handicapped persons at the Rehabilitation Centre. Although the Lancer ice statue at Polar Park eloped with Spring, lingering Booster Club projects seem always to have a pleasant feeling about them. When work was being doled out, the Political-Science Club greedily seized one of the largest positions. What gluttony they displayed in devouring thousand of books to sent to Kenya, Nigeria, and Barbados. Funds were raised by devious means with infinite cunning, but purposes for those funds were always beneficial to others. More clubs, you say? Whatever is done, Bonnie Doon has an organization doing it.

The Lancer Spirit, which really began when we became Doon's frosh, has grown and blossomed during our graduation year. On an interschool level Bonnie Doon teams have dominated athletics, in particular volleyball and basketball. The senior Lancers again won the CAHPER tournament, and they played championship basketball in the Provincial play-offs. When Bonnie Doon is their abode, intellectuals too are more likely to succeed. Be they debates, panelists, or half-milers, each deserves the niche he carved himself — and of each we're proud!

Life at Bonnie Doon has its more serious side, too. Academically we have excelled — our teachers made it so. Each of us has carried a heavy course through high school, anticipating that June Week which is our Judge and Equalizer. Some have received honor for their work, some merit, some self-pride. For everyone, something was gained.

This is the Class of 1966. We have learned and matured together. We have climbed, and sometimes slipped, together. We may not share the same hopes and objectives, but we have shared Bonnie Doon. Together we made a Class History.

KEEP CLIMBING, SON

The road looks pretty easy when you're sixteen-and-a-half months old
 Not downhill all the way, it's true, but still it's smooth and parent-paved You're sure the trip's a cinch — when you're sixteen-and-a-half months old

The trail looks like a heller when you're sixteen-and-a-half years old Straight up a glassy mountain with crevasse and slide and snow-whipped wind You're sure you'll never make it when you're sixteen-and-a-half years old

You're feeling fairly winded when you're sixty-and-a-half years old You've climbed a hundred hoary peaks — a thousand more to go
 But the view up here is worth it when you're sixty-and-a-half years old
